2. Teaching Focus:

RheinAhrCampus is looking for one guest lecturer, ideally with a PhD in Economics or a closely related business field, who can contribute to our Embracing Cultural Diversity Seminar + Business classes (CSR, International Business), which this year carries the title “Mind Shifts”.

The guest lecturer should be able to teach on topics including:

- Behavioral Economics & Consumer Behavior in relation to the concept of sustainable development and responsible consumption.
- Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) & Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) principles with a strong regional/transitional economy perspective
- Hands-on workshop using the principles of behavioral sciences such as “Flip the Script: Designing Empathy and Perspective Switching in Market Dilemmas.”

The academic and professional profile should combine expertise in:

- Business Economics and Firm Economics - ESG concepts
- Sustainable Resource Management and Sectoral Economics - SME development, and Agri-food trade
- Fashion Economics - changing consumer tastes, fast fashion industry dynamics, and CSR initiatives towards responsible production & consumption practices
- Educational Management and Digital Transformation - effects of AI on student motivation, teaching efficiency, and sustainable education systems

Apart from their teaching, the guest lecturer will also be responsible to:

- Participate as a guest lecturer, without additional compensation, in other courses or events in which international expertise might be shared with faculty, staff, students, and/or community;
- Hold an informational seminar about the home university in coordination with Languages / International Affairs.

3. Language and other requirements:

- The seminar and courses are taught in English (B2-C1 level).
- Previous experience in experiential learning approaches, behavioral role-playing games (e.g., "Role-Roulette") is desirable for this year's Cultural Diversity Seminar.

4. Application:

Interested candidates should send the following documents for a complete application:

- CV
- Motivation Letter
- Proposed course/workshop outline for the Embracing Cultural Diversity – “Mind Shifts” seminar
